

Jessica Minkus Named Among Top 50 Women Leaders of Pittsburgh for 2025

Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, October 14, 2025: Women We Admire has named Bookminders CEO Jessica Minkus as one of The Top 50 Women Leaders of Pittsburgh for 2025, recognizing outstanding executives who exemplify leadership, creativity, and impact across their industries and communities.

Women We Admire is a national organization that connects accomplished women in business, finance, healthcare, law, consulting, education, and the nonprofit sector. Their annual Top Women Leaders list highlights professionals who demonstrate authenticity, innovation, and empathy, inspiring collaboration and progress within their organizations and beyond.

As CEO of Bookmindors, Jessica has guided the firm through significant growth and national expansion while preserving its employee-first, remote work model. Known for her forward-thinking leadership and commitment to excellence, she has strengthened Bookmindors' reputation as a trusted accounting partner for nonprofits and complex businesses. Jessica's career path from Senior Accountant to CEO reflects her dedication to learning, innovation, and delivering exceptional client experiences while creating meaningful professional opportunities.

"Being recognized alongside so many accomplished leaders is truly meaningful," said Jessica. "This acknowledgment reflects the shared commitment of our entire team to excellence, integrity, and service. At Bookmindors, we believe that empowering people and supporting our clients' missions leads to lasting impact."

Bookmindors congratulates Jessica and all the other honorees on this well-deserved recognition. We celebrate Jessica's ongoing efforts to empower teams, advance women in leadership, and exemplify the company's purpose: Driven by Excellence, Distinguished by Trust.
